Farmers Union Seeks Members

The president of the Appomattox County Farmers Union has issued a call to all farmers of the county urging them to support Farmers Union's fight to halt the drop in farm prices by joining the organization during its annual membership drive next week.

J. P. Alvis, Jr., of Concord, said that now more than ever farmers should be members of an organization fighting for their interest. "We live in a highly organized society, and if farmers are not organized, their interests will not be protected," he decalred.

Mr. Alvis said that he and other members of his organization felt that Farmers Union was best representing the interests of this country's family farmers, but that if a farmer did not want to join that organization he should join some other.

He urged farmers to look at all organizations and decide which one best represents their views and to join that organization.

Next week teams of members will be canvassing the farmers, and a series of community meetings will be held at which the work of the organization will be presented.

JOKESTERS SET OFF ALARMS

Oak Ridge, Tenn.- Firemen here are bone-tired of answering false alarms. It seems that pranksters have been tying bones on strings and attaching the strings to the alarm boxes. Hungry dogs, spying the bones, have been setting off the alarms.

Appomattox is a growing town.

Around Your Home

By Frances Dell

Every so often any garden needs a remodeling. In spite of all the romantic talk about the lush old garden, with its drooping wisteria, spreading shade trees, and rich crumbling soil, there comes a time when nearly every landscape plan needs more than just its semi-annual clean-up.

A thorough going-over or remodeling will give you the kind of garden you want or once had. After two or three decades, much plant material becomes overgrown. Years of topdressing may mound up the soil in beds so that water runs out onto the paths.

Even the very best maintained garden can benefit in some ways from doing things over. You may want a change of environment, a fresh outlook as you approach the house or look out of windows. Or you may want to change your landscaping to fit the changing living patterns — perhaps to spend more time in the garden relaxing and less time working the beds.

It does not matter whether you are undertaking a landscape remodel of the property you have had for a year, or making changes on the older property you have just bought and wish to bring up to date, the problems are similar.
